Dear Mr. Casey:

I wanted you to know how much my wife and I appreciated the opportunity to attend the excellent "Donovan and the Fighting Sixty-Ninth" ceremony on June 2, 1986. I was particularly proud that my good friend, [REDACTED] did such a marvelous job putting together the tasteful exhibit. Since my father had served with the Pennsylvania Division in many of the same battles as the Fighting Sixty-Ninth, it was a particularly memorable evening for me.

STAT

I saw Jack Wydler at the House Armed Services Committee markup on the DOD bill, and told him I had had an opportunity to say hello to you at the Fighting Sixty-Ninth reception. I believe that the last time I had met you we had discussed the government's role in synthetic fuels at Jack's congressional farewell party.

Our best wishes for continued success in your critical stewardship; if [REDACTED] is in any way representative, you certainly have excellent people.

God bless the work!

Dear Pat,

Thanks for your note. It was good of you to come out and speak at the opening of the Donovan exhibit. You did your usual brilliant job and all of us are grateful. You gave the whole program a big lift.

I enjoyed reading your remarks on Teddy White, particularly those referring to his little book on Caesar at the Rubicon. I know that the book, used to see Teddy White when he was working on it, and read it when it came out. As I recall, he finished it off at Averill Harriman's place on Long Island after he had spent the best part of the summer working on it at that writers' hideout on Lake Como in Italy.

You still have to come out here to get your medal. Hope to see you soon.

Yours,

Bill

Dear Colonel Powers:

I wish to express the CIA's appreciation for the contribution of the active members and veterans of the Sixty-Ninth Regiment to our ceremony and exhibit on William Donovan's experiences in World War I. It was indeed useful for Agency employees to be reminded of the patriotism and character of the man, regarded as our founder, as demonstrated in that conflict. We could not have conveyed that message without the cooperation of the Sixty-Ninth.

That cooperation was extended on several levels. First of all, you entrusted us with your most valuable artifacts dating from that period, and they attracted an exceptional degree of interest from Agency employees and other visitors to the exhibit. For example, several Agency employees found the names of ancestors on the list of the old Sixty-Ninth you provided. The grandson and granddaughter of William Donovan seemed particularly moved at the sight of the old Regimental flags.

Secondly, the presence of the Sixty-Ninth delegation formed the core of the opening ceremony on 2 June. We appreciate the time and effort expended by all members of the delegation to provide us with a unique opportunity to see one of the truly distinguished U.S. military institutions--the Fighting Sixty-Ninth.

Finally, my staff informs me that as Regimental Historian your particular efforts and time you spent here were essential to the interesting and accurate arrangement of the materials used in the exhibit. As those of us at the 2 June ceremony can attest, you presided efficiently and eloquently over the transfer of the artifacts, and we replayed that portion of the ceremony for exhibit visitors later in June.

Please extend my thanks and good wishes to all your colleagues in the Sixty-Ninth.

Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT:

Ceremony and Exhibit on General Donovan

1. Every once in a while we need to pause in our busy schedules to reflect on the origins of our Agency and the people who contributed so much to its formation. The opening ceremony on 2 June for the exhibit, "With the Fighting Sixty-Ninth: Donovan in World War I," provided one of those occasions for the people who attended. The exhibit will provide a similar opportunity for reflection by the rest of the Agency.

2. I want to thank you and your staff members, [REDACTED] [REDACTED] for the superb effort that went into conceptualizing, planning, and bringing to fruition the ceremony and exhibit. Your work speaks well of the high standards of professionalism that Agency officers by tradition have possessed.
